

As part of the Community Outreach Program, Reach Cambridge students partner with a local or global charity and use their time in Cambridge to get involved with a project that helps those that need it.

For the last two years, the chosen charity has been the Sabre Charitable Trust and Reach students have helped raise thousands of pounds that will support children and their education in Ghana.

Fundraising is done through innovative projects, sponsorships for challenges, auctions of promises or even international party organisation :). Community Outreach Program is a great fun way to use some of your free time at Cambridge.

Here's a showcase of the types of projects that the money raised by Reach Cambridge students goes towards:
