

We are nearly at the end of program 1, and today had the students completing their main courses before the interdisciplinary day happening tomorrow. The computer science and physics students completed their rover challenge and crowned a winning team, the politics students gave their final presentations, and the journalism class rushed to put the finishing touches to the Reach Record which you can read here. The students also received certificates from their teachers to commemorate their achievements!

After class, students headed into Cambridge to grab some lunch, and a debating workshop in the afternoon debated topics including social media and pineapple on pizza.

The terrifying and haunting Ghost Tour!

Sadly, a few students are leaving us early tomorrow morning; so many students took the opportunity this evening to go out for a celebratory final meal in Cambridge. The last activity of the evening was a ghost tour around Cambridge. There were spooky stories, unexplainable sounds, and a persistent ghost that would not leave the group alone...

Finally, it was off to bed to be ready and rested for the interdisciplinary day tomorrow. The students have been working hard all week on their GOAT ("Greatest Of All Time") presentations for tomorrow, and we can't wait to see them!
